

Yutic

BRAND IDENTITY · V1.0 · AUGUST 2026

We build software for problems that don't have software yet.

Yutic is a software lab. We pick a field — agriculture, space, biology, whatever turns out to be interesting — learn it properly, and build the tool it was missing.

Normascope is the first. This document covers the mark, the palette, the type and every surface they appear on.

01 — THE MARK

Five feathers, five eyes

A peacock display, fanned open. The eye is what a lab does — look closely at something nobody has looked at properly; five of them, because Yutic looks at more than one field.

The fan is symmetrical about its centre feather and is never redrawn, reordered, recoloured outside the approved reversals, or rotated.

02 — LOCKUPS

Fan left, Yutic beside it

The horizontal lockup is the default and covers almost every use. The fan sits at the wordmark's full height, aligned on the centre feather; the gap between them is one eye-width. Use the stacked lockup only where width is genuinely constrained.

03 — COLOUR

One colour, six greys

Feather orange is the only chromatic colour in the Yutic palette. Pupil peach appears in the mark and as a highlight; everything else is a warm neutral. Orange earns attention because nothing competes with it — keep it under roughly 10% of any surface, on the one thing you want clicked or read first. Products bring their own colour; Yutic does not assign them one.

PROPORTION

Roughly 62 paper / 22 white / 9 shaft / 7 orange. Orange is a spot colour, not a surface colour — the one exception is a card or cover printed full-bleed orange with the mark knocked out.

CONTRAST

Shaft on paper	15.9 : 1 ✓ AAA
Grey 700 on paper	7.6 : 1 ✓ AAA
Orange on paper	3.3 : 1 — large text only
Shaft on orange	7.4 : 1 ✓ AAA

Orange never carries body copy on a light ground. For links and small labels, use shaft with an orange underline or rule instead.

DM Mono and DM Sans

DM Mono sets the wordmark, headlines, labels and anything numeric. DM Sans carries everything longer than three lines. Both are open licence, so they work identically in product, print and slides.

Software for odd problems

What we are working on

CURRENTLY IN THE LAB

Normascope photographs your running app and tells you exactly what moved.

Node 18+ · no account · nothing to uninstall

Say what it does

Plain and factual. Yutic describes what it built and who it is for, and stops there. No mission language, no adjectives doing work a fact could do, no claims about changing industries.

WRITE THIS

“Normascope photographs your running app and tells you exactly what moved.”

“A software lab. We pick a field, learn it properly, and build the tool it was missing.”

“Free, local, no account.”

NOT THIS

“Revolutionising visual quality assurance with AI-powered insight.”

“We are on a mission to unlock human potential across industries.”

“Seamless. Effortless. Magical.”

Card, letterhead, invoice

Card is 85 × 55 mm, uncoated stock, front in feather orange with the mark knocked out. Letterhead and invoice are A4 with a 20 mm margin.

09 — PRODUCTS

Yutic is the quiet parent

Products keep their own identity — Normascope's peach and maroon stay exactly as they are. Yutic appears once per product surface, small, in the footer or the about page, never in the product's own header or its app UI.

ENDORSEMENT LINE

A product from Yutic

Lockup height matches the product's footer type. Never larger than the product's own wordmark, never in feather orange when the product's palette already uses a warm hue.

11 — ALTERNATE SCHEME

Plum

Plum is the approved alternate to orange and black. Nothing about the mark changes — same five feathers, same geometry, same clearspace, same type — only the palette. Both schemes are official. Choose one per surface and hold it: a deck, a site, a document or a piece of stationery is either orange or plum, never both.

12 — ALTERNATE SCHEME

Peacock teal

The third approved scheme, and the only one taken from the bird itself. Orange is warm and industrial, plum is rich and low-lit; teal is cold and clinical, and reads as instrument rather than brand. It suits technical surfaces — documentation, dashboards, spec sheets, anything where the work is being measured rather than sold. Same rules as the others: same mark, same geometry, one scheme per surface.
